

Chapter Two – The One

“That morning I was not yet a Vampire, and I saw my last sunrise. I saw it completely, and yet I cannot recall any sunrise before it. I watched the whole magnificence of the dawn for the last time, as if it were the first. And then I said goodbye to sunlight and set out to become, what I became...” - As spoken by Louis, from the Anne Rice novel, “Interview with the Vampire”

It felt equally and strangely poetic, to have shed my Ego, and yet I too was alone. Even after a few days of confusion, I could understand what had happened. But this intensely private development would have felt strange to celebrate, even if anyone cared. That transition for Louis, had been from the Light to the Dark. Mine had been from Ignorance into the Light.

I remembered at this time, too, the description of Louis seeing the night anew, as for the first time, with the eyes of a newborn Vampire; in wonder, as like an infant. These images came to mind for me, as I navigated my new reality. Feeling lighter, it took awhile to put my finger on what else was different; the volume had been turned down. Previous versions of myself had an intensity of emotion, where the ego demanded that one defend ones position as if life or death. Now life felt quieter; a more peaceful landscape internally.

During this first week or two of transition, the old emotional responses still appeared in mind, but they felt rather irrelevant. There were, maybe two, occasions where I actually verbalized an emotional response, which I immediately realized was a mistake, and apologized for. But the other party, seemed unaffected, because both the words and the feeling behind them, were strangely empty of real intensity. Since then, I now catch and release these feeling-words, before they can even form.

This first half of January, especially, I was fully in hermit mode. I had to work thru my inner shadows. I did all the heavy lifting. There is always, yet, a few nooks and crannies to bring to light, some lingering residue, so the process may not end. But sufficient was done, that I could now free up from my old self, and begin to attract in, what was meant for this better version of myself from the Universe. From the traumas, I had alchemized them into wisdom.

The ultimate result of discarding the limiting programs, and healing the inner child of trauma, is that you peel back the layers of who you actually are. At the centre, you find that what you finally are, is Love. And that you are Unlimited. So, perhaps, Unlimited Love. We are each this, if we are willing to do the work to find out. If it sounds like the Divine, consider that we are each a fractile of that Creator Mind, and we boil down to essentially the same. Yes, we can reset to the default setting we were at, when we were born.

But people REALLY do not want to do the work. Ego is always a problem. Laziness and distraction are a problem. The societal programming is specifically designed to solidify beliefs in everyone, of limitation, fear, and unworthiness. There was a middle-eastern Prophet, Jeshua (Jesus), whose message was rarely understood. He did not want to be worshipped; his purpose was to teach about how reality actually worked; ...still works !

Modern-day manifestation coaches are mostly scammers. When they are legit, they point to how you must get everything right inside, in order for your outer reality to manifest. To get in alignment, you cannot be wishing, but knowing. How do you get to the knowing? Do the spiritual work ! The outer reality has NO CHOICE, but to align to what you emit inside, of vibrating at the highest levels of Love, and Authenticity (i.e. Truth).

The teaching, “the Kingdom of Heaven is within you” is nothing more than this. Heaven is not elsewhere, it arrives here in your outer reality, as an exact reflection of your insides, your higher consciousness. The Biblical miracles performed, were extreme examples of manifestation. To the 3D world, these seem impossible. But in the ever higher conscious dimensions, they become ever more commonplace.

My gift, is to alchemize pain and evil, into something worthwhile, like wisdom. Can I reliably manifest? I will not claim that at this point, because I am still learning (or re-learning, since this is likely lodged in my subconscious). I sense I have done these sort of things in other lifetimes, and that I can recover these gifts, after a period of initiation. It is my nature to tell truth, or the best I know it, at any given time. So I will not claim to know, something I don't.

When we awaken from Ego, we begin on the Ascension journey. This journey involves different Chakras in our body becoming activated. I will not claim much knowledge of this, so early in my own journey. I do seem to have activated the Pineal gland. Whether this is always the simultaneous case for others, or not, when they discard the Ego, I cannot claim to know (yet). I only know what I experienced for myself.

When the Ego falls away, we begin to vibrate at higher levels. These levels require some bodily adjustments. This is what I experienced as fogginess in the mind, in the week or so, after Liberation, as my body went thru this. But, the fogginess was also a sign of the Pineal gland activating. This is the so-called “Third Eye” which is centrally located in the brain, between the left & right hemispheres. It is hard for me to describe, but there is a sort of sensation there, where none previously existed; a sort of extra consciousness.

It does not see, in the traditional sense, but is closely linked to intuition and psychic abilities. I have always had some intuition, which seemed more reliable when I meditated regularly. But now, I am noticing synchronicities much more so. The Pineal, I would imagine, is involved, when someone has “visions”. I have not experienced those, but I do not discount that possibility happening in future.

In the weeks leading up to the 2025/26 shift, I was presentient to know its importance as a rare opportunity. So in December, I had ordered a number of aids that I thought might help propel me. Things such as colloidal gold to activate the Pineal, a schumann wave generator (for high vibration), grounding sheet, detox systems, etc. In the event, most of these things arrived ironically enough, in January AFTER I had already awakened.

In the case of the colloidal gold, I took it anyway for a month, presuming it would still be useful in getting the Pineal as healthy as possible. Since we are surrounded by low-frequency emitting devices, I had wanted to experiment with high-frequency. I wondered if it might be pleasant to sleep immersed in high frequency. I also wear something around my neck, that is supposed to counteract the low-vibration assault on the body.

My routine also involved a lot of monitoring of online Tarot card readings. This was helpful in understanding the Ascension journey and its symptoms. Some of the readings seemed to speak directly to me, and I was enthralled, intoxicated. The story of the Starseeds was pretty similar, in that they seemed to have been planted incognito at birth, with the ultimate purpose of raising the frequency of earth for 2026.

Common among the Starseeds, was that their journey was suffering, since they were known full well of, by evil, and those practicing it, (such as by black magic), which made them prone to being preyed upon. To everyone else, including the Starseeds themselves, they were unaware of their importance, or if they did sense it, it faded as they moved out of early childhood. It was not by coincidence that these Starseeds, as Empaths, were paired up with the very Narcissists, that would trigger their awakening. Just in time for 2026.

In the card readings, I began to notice more and more, one particular character. This was a Starseed who had apparently immense gifts, and had been particularly targeted and persecuted. This person seemed a sort of leader among the Starseeds, and would be emitting the highest vibration to help kick Earth into the 5D timeline.

I began to piece together the story of this particularly gifted Starseed. Many are called, but few are Chosen. This person was, the Chosen, of the Chosen. The One, if you will. Apparently, this motherfucker had to endure intense evil attention and disruption throughout their entire life, targeted right from birth onwards. This person's life story exactly mirrored my own.

That poor motherfucker was me.

Apparently, I am The Chosen One.
